

The sign of maturity is recognizing why sacrifice in life is sometimes necessary. Last August, Tyree “Chuck” Harris had no chance of getting into college unless he repeated a year of high school to showcase his academic and athletic talents. He was able to find a sponsor who afforded him the chance to attend The Phelps School as a Post Graduate. Chuck dedicated his time this past year, earning Commendations, P-Pin, Merit and basketball awards in preparation for the opportunity of a lifetime. Today, Chuck’s dream became a reality as he signed his letter of intent to accept a full scholarship to attend Philadelphia University next fall. A man among boys, Chuck sacrificed time from his friends and family to make his dream of attending college a well-deserved reality. On behalf of everyone at Phelps, we wish Chuck congratulations and best of luck!
